Take a Chance on a family favourite

It's the beloved board game where players race through London, buying streets, building houses and hotels and collecting rents while remembering to Pass Go and hoping to avoid landing on an opponent's property.

Monopoly's been at the heart of family fun and friendly feuds for 90 years. It's played in more than 100 countries – but its London landmarks make it a truly British icon.

This 90th anniversary set of stamps and collectibles celebrates everything that makes Monopoly more than just a board game. Ten stamps bring together every aspect of the action, from the legendary locations to the classic playing pieces – or tokens. And a charming commemorative keepsake brings together two British institutions – a Royal Mail pillar box and the Monopoly game board – in the shape of a limited-edition token.

So, roll the dice and pass Go to collect souvenirs marking 90 years of the game that's created teenage tycoons and penniless parents – making sure family gatherings would never be the same again.
